

Digital Globe

Data Rights

Licensing and other intellectual property rights to data purchased by the U.S. Government under this contract will be established subject to mutually agreeable terms with the data vendors. The minimum data rights acceptable to NASA are as follows:

- In general, NASA will reserve the right to distribute data to researchers affiliated with ESE through grants or other formal mechanisms, to researchers in the international community with whom NASA has data exchange arrangements, and to commercial entities with whom NASA has contracted to develop prototype commercial products.
- NASA will not commercially exploit property in which the government holds a license.
- ESE data products derived from purchased data sets will have no restrictions on access by and distribution outside the ESE program, provided that the original raw data was transformed in a substantive manner and cannot be extracted.
- Any derivations or modifications to contract data rights will be negotiated within individual delivery orders.